

AGL Symposium Toward Cultivating Innovative Global Leaders

1:30 pm—5:00 pm, Monday March 10, 2014

Venue: Iino Hall, 4th floor at Iino Hall and Conference Center
2-1-1 Uchisaiwaicho, Chiyoda-ku, Tokyo, Japan
(<http://www.iino.co.jp/hall/access/>)

< Free Admission: Maximum seating capacity is 300 >

Early registration by February 25, 2014 on our website
<http://www.agl.titech.ac.jp/english/2014/02/agl-symposium.html>
is greatly appreciated.

Symposium Objective:

Today's challenges are global issues such as climate change, energy security, ethnic conflicts, and sustainable economic growth. To reduce the sense of stagnation, future leaders must be able to form concrete visions to resolve global issues, build a consensus amongst diverse groups with different interests and perspectives, and implement their visions. Around the world, many novel education programs have been developed to cultivate these leadership skills.

This symposium will discuss the abilities that innovative global leaders should possess and methods to realize them. Specifically, successful leadership education activities in secondary and higher education, human resource development in a company, and the activities of the TokyoTech Academy for Global Leadership (AGL) will be introduced.

Although the official language of the symposium is Japanese, simultaneous translation services will be provided.

Program:

1:30 pm—1:35 pm Opening Address Yoshinao Mishima, President, Tokyo Institute of Technology

1:35 pm—2:25 pm Part 1: Introduction of AGL

What is AGL? Isao Satoh, Director of AGL, Tokyo Institute of Technology

AGL Activities AGL students (TBA)

- break -

2:30 pm—3:30 pm Part 2: Keynote Lecture

Can Leadership Be Taught? (in English)

Dr. Wes Wynens, Director, Leadership Education and Development, Georgia Institute of Technology

- break -

3:35 pm—4:55 pm Part 3: Panel Discussion

What kind of abilities should be developed to encourage the potential innovative global leaders? And how?
< Panelists >

Ms. Akiko Kato, Japan Future Leaders School (high school level)

Prof. Jun Ishikawa, Business Leadership Program, Rikkyo University (undergraduate level)

Mr. Takeshi Fukui, Toyota Institute (human resource development in a company)

Dr. Wes Wynens, LEAD Program, Georgia Institute of Technology

<Moderator>

Isao Satoh, Director of AGL, Tokyo Institute of Technology

Dr. Wes Wynens
Georgia Institute of Technology

Ms. Akiko Kato
Japan Future Leaders School

Prof. Jun Ishikawa
Rikkyo University

Mr. Takeshi Fukui
Toyota Institute

4:55 pm—5:00 pm Closing Address Toshio Maruyama, Executive Vice President, Tokyo Institute of Technology

There will be an on-site networking reception after the symposium beginning at 5:30 pm. The admission fee is ¥3,000.

Organized by: Academy for Global Leadership (AGL), Tokyo Institute of Technology

Mail S6-17, 2-12-1 O-okayama, Meguro-ku, Tokyo 152-8850, Japan

Phone +81-3-5734-3116 Fax +81-3-5734-3765

E-mail agl.jim@agl.titech.ac.jp Website <http://www.agl.titech.ac.jp>

