Enrollment Fee and/or Tuition Exemption and/or Postponement of Payment

In this document, section 1. covers exemption from the enrollment fee and postponement of its payment, and section 2. covers exemption from tuition and postponement of its payment. The amount of exemption, if granted, will be half of the enrollment fee and full or half of the tuition.

When preparing your application, please read this guide thoroughly. Check every part of your application documents carefully to make certain they are complete and correct before submission. In the event that application documents are found to contain false information, exemption will be revoked even if approval was previously granted.

Personal data entered in the application will be used only for application screening purposes.

1. Applying for Enrollment Fee Exemption and/or Postponement of Payment

When one of the conditions in “1. Requirements for enrollment fee exemption/payment postponement” is met, you can apply for exemption from the enrollment fee (and postponement of its payment at the same time). If you completed a master’s program at Tokyo Tech in the fall semester and entered a doctoral program in spring, you do not need to pay the enrollment fee again. If your application is successful, half of the enrollment fee can be waived or its payment can be postponed. Please carefully read this guide and follow the instructions necessary for preparation and submission of your application.

If you also wish to apply for exemption from tuition (and postponement of its payment at the same time), please refer to “2. Applying for Tuition Exemption and/or Postponement of Payment.”

Those who will pay the enrollment fee and/or tuition in full and apply for postponement of its payment are also required to follow the procedure stated in this guide.

1. Requirements for enrollment fee exemption/payment postponement

To apply for enrollment fee exemption/payment postponement, you must be one of the following:

- 1) A degree-seeking student who is unable to pay the enrollment fee due to financial difficulties but has demonstrated outstanding academic performance
- 2) A degree-seeking student who is unable to pay the enrollment fee due to the death of his/her financial provider, or due to damage caused by a natural disaster, which occurred within a year prior to enrollment, from which a student or his/her financial provider is suffering
- 3) A degree-seeking student whose circumstances are comparable with 1) or 2) above and whose reasons for exemption/payment postponement are approved by the president

Notwithstanding the above, international students entering Tokyo Tech in the 2022 spring semester will not be exempt from payment, although they may be eligible for payment postponement. (Those who were Tokyo Tech students throughout September 2021 to March 2022 (the entire 2021 fall semester) can apply for exemption and/or postponement.)

Also, the following students are not permitted to apply for exemption or postponement.

1. Privately funded international students who have been assigned by their government to a study abroad program
2. Government funded international students

2. Applying for Tuition Exemption and/or Postponement of Payment

When one of the conditions in "1. Requirements for tuition exemption/payment postponement" is met, you can apply for exemption from tuition (and postponement of its payment at the same time). If your application is successful, the full or half the amount of the tuition can be waived or its payment postponed upon request. Please carefully read this guide and follow the instructions for preparation and submission of your application.

If an undergraduate student who was exempted from half or the full amount in the spring semester enters a master's program from the fall semester due to early graduation, the exemption will apply to the fall semester as well. In this case, please complete the Online Pre-application. Students who graduate early but are not exempted have to newly apply for the exemption if needed.

1. Requirements for tuition exemption/payment postponement

To apply for tuition exemption/payment postponement, you must be one of the following:

- 1) A degree-seeking student who is unable to pay tuition due to financial difficulties but has demonstrated outstanding academic performance
- 2) A degree-seeking student who is unable to pay tuition due to the death of his/her financial provider, or due to damage caused by a natural disaster that occurred within a year prior to enrollment as a new student, or six months prior to the deadline for tuition payment for current students, from which the student or his/her financial provider is suffering
- 3) A degree-seeking student whose circumstances are comparable with 1) or 2) above and whose reasons for exemption/payment postponement are approved by the president

(Those who are repeating a year or who have exceeded the standard duration of study are not eligible for exemption in principle.)

Notwithstanding the above, international students entering Tokyo Tech in the 2022 spring semester will not be exempt from payment, although they may be eligible for payment postponement. (Those who were Tokyo Tech students throughout September 2021 to March 2022 (the entire 2021 fall semester) can apply for exemption and/or postponement.)

Also, the following students are not permitted to apply for exemption or postponement:

1. Government-funded international students
2. Privately funded international students who have been assigned by their government to a study abroad program

2. Period of validity for exemption/payment postponement decisions

When applicants for tuition exemption are expected to complete their degree programs in or after October 2022, decisions will be made regarding tuition for the 2022 spring and fall semesters.

As a general rule, exemption applications for a spring semester are also considered for the fall semester. However, if students receive a half-exemption or disapproval decision this time, they can apply for the exemption again for a fall semester if they fall under item 2) of the requirements (section 2.1).

When applicants for payment postponement are expected to complete their degree programs in or before September 2022, decisions will be made regarding only the tuition for the 2022 spring semester. Those who apply for (and are approved for) payment postponement for a spring semester and wish to be exempted from the tuition fee for the fall semester or defer the payment, they need to apply as such for a fall semester.

3. Other important points for both enrollment fee and tuition fee exemption and postponement of payment

1) For those who apply for exemption from tuition and/or the enrollment fee and/or postponement of its payment, the collection of tuition will be withheld until the decision on their application is made. If you have applied, please do not make payment until you have been notified of the decision. If you do, your application will be automatically withdrawn. Also note that you may not apply for exemption from tuition that you have already paid.

2) After receiving your application result, unless full exemption is approved, you must pay the designated amount immediately or by the date specified in the notification. Failure to meet the payment deadline will result in your dismissal from Tokyo Tech.

3) Information on the payment method will be enclosed with the notification that you receive. For inquiries regarding tuition payment, please contact: Revenue Group, Accounting Division on Ookayama campus (Email: kei.syu@jim.titech.ac.jp). Please make sure to include your name, student ID number.

4) If there is a need to inquire about the application documents, we will contact your Tokyo Tech email address (@m.titech.ac.jp) in principle. Please check your email settings so that you can receive emails from Tokyo Tech. Also, be sure to check your email regularly during the exemption application process. Tokyo Tech will not be liable for any disadvantage caused by the applicant not confirming or not being able to confirm emails.

5) Failure to submit all documents fully completed by the specified deadline, or failure to reply to inquiries from the Student Support Division, could result in disapproval of applications or applicants not being entitled to deductions. Also, if we contact your Tokyo Tech email address but do not receive a reply by the specified deadline, your application may be disapproved or you will not be entitled to deductions. The Student Support Division will not send any reminder notices for documents and replies that have not been submitted and/or sent after the specified deadline.

6) If you wish to have your application cancelled or withdrawn because of missing documents, change of circumstances, or other reasons, please contact the Student Support Division by email with your student ID number, name, and application details. If you fail to submit documents after completing pre-application, your application will be automatically disapproved. If that is the case, application for exemption and/or payment postponement for the fall semester will not be permitted in principle.

7) Please note that you must submit all documents to the Student Support Division on the campus that you registered on the online pre-application form.
