graduate major: registration for courses offered in the medical and dental sciences

The core courses of the Science and Technology for Health Care and Medicine graduate major standard curriculum include courses offered in the medical and dental sciences fields. However, those courses differ from science and engineering courses in a few ways; keep the following distinctions in mind when planning what courses to take.

Major differences between courses offered

	Science and engineering	Medical and dental sciences
Schedule	Fixed (Except for intensive courses lectures and research seminars)	Irregular (The same course may be held on various periods or days of the week)
Semester break	Quarter system	Spring and fall semester system (Courses offered in the spring semester do not necessarily start in April, etc.)
Class format (terms may vary)	In-person (Ookayama, Suzukakedai campuses), livestream, on-demand, hybrid, high-flex	In-person (Yushima campus), remote classes (synchronous or asynchronous), Zoom, etc.
Learning Management System	Science Tokyo LMS	Web Class
Syllabus	Science Tokyo Syllabus	Dream Campus
Course registration period 2025 spring semester	April 4 (Fri) to April 18 (Fri) at 1:00 p.m.	April 1 (Tue) to April 6 (Sun)

Registration for medical and dental sciences courses

- Note that you may only take the courses listed in the core courses of the Study Guides for Science and Technology for Health Care and Medicine. Academic units or major codes are listed in the “Notes” or “Comment” column.
- Course schedules and academic units or major codes are listed in the timetable for medical and dental sciences courses.
- Please check the syllabus for each major on the following medical and dental websites to confirm the course details and schedule. ~~Search for Medical and Dental Sciences courses by subject title on the syllabi site below. Click the “Subject title” for details. For exact dates and times, find the “Course Schedule,” then click “Course schedule details.”~~
